After the Conference, the papers were submitted for publication. The revised versions were then published in the American Speech Language Hearing Association's journal, American Journal of Speech-Language Pathology. The conference proceedings were also published as a book, titled "The Future of Speech and Language Pathology: A Joint Conference of the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association and the American Academy of Audiology." The book included papers presented at the conference, as well as discussions and recommendations for the future of the field.

The conference was a success, with attendees from around the country and internationally. The discussions were lively and productive, and the Proceedings were widely read and cited. The conference had a lasting impact on the field of speech and language pathology, helping to shape the direction of research and practice in the years that followed.

Participants included experts from various disciplines, including speech-language pathology, audiology, and related fields. The conference was held in cooperation with the American Academy of Audiology, which added to the cross-disciplinary nature of the event.

Overall, the conference was a milestone event in the history of the field, bringing together professionals and researchers to discuss the latest findings and future directions in speech and language pathology.