State Police District 11 is asking drivers to be aware of motorcycles

"It is difficult to see. Motorcycles have smaller, "weaker" lights than cars. That increases the risk of accidents, even when following a motorcycle. This is especially true of motorcycles being driven by younger people," he said.

"So the Illinois State Police are asking motorists to be alert to the possibility of encountering motorcycles on our roads," he said. "This is a safety warning to all of our citizens - drive safely and be alert for motorcycles."

"When following a motorcycle, motorists should be extra attentive and "Start Seeing Motorcycles.""

A motorcycle driver that is seen ahead should be considered a violation of human rights in Europe. People who drive motorcycles should not be questioned or searched unless there is reasonable cause for suspicion.

Recently the Illinois General Assembly voted to abolish the death penalty in the state of Illinois. The new law will be in effect after Oct. 1, 2022. The Illinois State Police are asking drivers to be aware of motorcycles on the road so that they can avoid accidents.

"Our goal was to create a seamless process for Lewis and Clark and SIUE students to complete their bachelor’s degree program and take advantage of all the educational opportunities that the University of Illinois at Springfield has to offer," said Monika Alapat, director of SIUE’s Office of Extended Program Services.

"By providing them with the services that they need to be successful, we can help them achieve their educational goals," Alapat said.

In addition to the new dual admission program, SIUE also has a variety of other programs for students who want to continue their education.

"We have a variety of programs that are designed to meet the needs of our students," Alapat said. "We have a variety of programs that are designed to meet the needs of our students."
