Dr. Zhou (from the second left standing) and his students visiting Beijing, China.

For regular consumers and everyday business, a local banking system would be even better. "If there is a bigger bank that will better be able to help deal with regulatory changes, such as the new capital rules, - which made the mega-banks possible - has a very large impact on the regulatory factor behind the financial crisis of 2008."

"For regular consumers and everyday business, a local banking system would be even better. "If there is a bigger bank that will better be able to help deal with regulatory changes, such as the new capital rules, - which made the mega-banks possible - has a very large impact on the regulatory factor behind the financial crisis of 2008.""

"For regular consumers and everyday business, a local banking system would be even better. "If there is a bigger bank that will better be able to help deal with regulatory changes, such as the new capital rules, - which made the mega-banks possible - has a very large impact on the regulatory factor behind the financial crisis of 2008."

"For regular consumers and everyday business, a local banking system would be even better. "If there is a bigger bank that will better be able to help deal with regulatory changes, such as the new capital rules, - which made the mega-banks possible - has a very large impact on the regulatory factor behind the financial crisis of 2008.""