Ireland has been at the center of political struggle for centuries, remaining a land of violent conflict until recently. For anyone interested in studying the history and politics of turbulent lands, Ireland provides the perfect vantage points. To this end, "Irish Studies 2013: Contesting Ireland: Nationalism, Separatism, and Identity" explored the ethno-nationalist conflict in Northern Ireland in the 20th century. In the program titled, "Ireland – The Politics of Social and Cultural Dynamics of the Republic", Ms. Gabrielle Zamfir was first from the left on the first row.

"We talked about the economics of it," she added. "And a special assignment was the itself community heritage, which is much more obvious in other neighborhoods where it is not a big deal at all."

Some of the sites they visited included Kilmainham jail and a trip to Trinity College to see the Book of Kells, manuscripts of the Gospels created by Celtic monks around the year 800. They met with several members of the Northern Irish Assembly in Belfast and met with representatives of the Peace Alliance Party which tries to bring the two communities together.

"I think they will make a step backwards," Ms. Zamfir is first from the left on the first row. "I believe the Northern Ireland parliament building, which is a symbol of the peace process, will be closed."

"For the Intelligencer"

Jobs Plus 13 job fair planned in Carbondale

The 23rd annual job fair, Jobs Plus 13, will be held on October 5 at the Pavilion Convention Center in Murphysboro. The event will be open to the public, with free parking and admission. For more information, call 618-457-4725 or go online at www.illinoishistory.com. jobsplus13@illinoishistory.com.

Save Illinois History plans events

With the economy in mind, the Madigan-Carter Museum of Commerce recently conducted a ribbon cutting ceremony with the help of Plowshares Crafts, Inc. The business is located at 224 North Main Street in Edwardsville. For more information, call 622- 6919 or visit www.plowshares.org.

New neighbors

More than 6,000 square foot and features a library, computer lab, and a meeting room. The library, with free parking and admission, with free parking and admission and will feature a mock battle,

Regional

Ireland trip exposes students to turbulent history

A group of SIUE students went to Ireland over this summer. Ms. Gabrielle Zamfir was first from the left on the first row.

"We talked about the economics of it," she added. "And a special assignment was the itself community heritage, which is much more obvious in other neighborhoods where it is not a big deal at all."

Some of the sites they visited included Kilmainham jail and a trip to Trinity College to see the Book of Kells, manuscripts of the Gospels created by Celtic monks around the year 800. They met with several members of the Northern Irish Assembly in Belfast and met with representatives of the Peace Alliance Party which tries to bring the two communities together.

"I think they will make a step backwards," Ms. Zamfir is first from the left on the first row. "I believe the Northern Ireland parliament building, which is a symbol of the peace process, will be closed."

"For the Intelligencer"

Jobs Plus 13 job fair planned in Carbondale

The 23rd annual job fair, Jobs Plus 13, will be held on October 5 at the Pavilion Convention Center in Murphysboro. The event will be open to the public, with free parking and admission. For more information, call 618-457-4725 or go online at www.illinoishistory.com. jobsplus13@illinoishistory.com.

Save Illinois History plans events

With the economy in mind, the Madigan-Carter Museum of Commerce recently conducted a ribbon cutting ceremony with the help of Plowshares Crafts, Inc. The business is located at 224 North Main Street in Edwardsville. For more information, call 622- 6919 or visit www.plowshares.org.

New neighbors

More than 6,000 square foot and features a library, computer lab, and a meeting room. The library, with free parking and admission, with free parking and admission and will feature a mock battle,

Regional

Ireland trip exposes students to turbulent history

A group of SIUE students went to Ireland over this summer. Ms. Gabrielle Zamfir was first from the left on the first row.

"We talked about the economics of it," she added. "And a special assignment was the itself community heritage, which is much more obvious in other neighborhoods where it is not a big deal at all."

Some of the sites they visited included Kilmainham jail and a trip to Trinity College to see the Book of Kells, manuscripts of the Gospels created by Celtic monks around the year 800. They met with several members of the Northern Irish Assembly in Belfast and met with representatives of the Peace Alliance Party which tries to bring the two communities together.

"I think they will make a step backwards," Ms. Zamfir is first from the left on the first row. "I believe the Northern Ireland parliament building, which is a symbol of the peace process, will be closed."

"For the Intelligencer"

Jobs Plus 13 job fair planned in Carbondale

The 23rd annual job fair, Jobs Plus 13, will be held on October 5 at the Pavilion Convention Center in Murphysboro. The event will be open to the public, with free parking and admission. For more information, call 618-457-4725 or go online at www.illinoishistory.com. jobsplus13@illinoishistory.com.

Save Illinois History plans events

With the economy in mind, the Madigan-Carter Museum of Commerce recently conducted a ribbon cutting ceremony with the help of Plowshares Crafts, Inc. The business is located at 224 North Main Street in Edwardsville. For more information, call 622- 6919 or visit www.plowshares.org.

New neighbors

More than 6,000 square foot and features a library, computer lab, and a meeting room. The library, with free parking and admission, with free parking and admission and will feature a mock battle,