Also known for his ability to take political undertakings on, Garcia’s streak of winning began in 1987 when he guided Robert Casey in Pennsylvania to a gubernational victory. He did the same thing in 1993 with Watt Roney in his run for Kentucky governor and with Pennsylvania Senator Frank Lautenberg in 1986. Garcia drew national attention when he brought Pennsylvania Senator Harris Wofford from 40 years behind in the polls to win the Senate seat in a landslide and upset victory over Republican incumbent, George Voinovich.
